IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving remembrance of my dear husband, Lemuel J. Weddington, who passed away September 1, 1918.

In the grave yard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave
Lies one we love so dearly
In his silent, lonely grave.
We did not know the pain he had
Although we saw him die,
We only knew he passed away
And never said goodbye.

Peaceful be your sleep dear husband,
It is sweet to breathe your name,
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
Just one year ago you left us,
How we miss you husband dear,
And remember all your kindness,
As we drop a silent tear.

Sadly missed by,

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving remembrance of my darling mother, Mrs. Alice Payne who departed this life nine years ago August 18, 1910.

Darling mother how I miss you,
Lest may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That's within my heart concealed.

I know you have gone to a brighter land,
With no pains or toils to bear,
For there is eternal life and happiness
In our loving Savior's care.

Sleep on sweet angel and take thy rest
With your head upon our Savior's breast.
Place your hands upon and guide me to your nest
As God does all things for the best.

THEY SAY

--That the only way some people attract attention to themselves is by knocking some other fellow.

--That some Negroes deliberately seek discrimination and insults by patronizing business places where in suits are held out.

--That the only reason why some people won't be sick this winter is because they are not carrying a sick and accident policy.

--That popularity builded on pretense is short-lived and sure to topple over when least expected.

--That a certain Railroad man finding a suit of pajamas No. 50 in his closet when he wears No. 38 asked his wife who the owner was. She replied, "Why, honey, I borrowed those to go to a pajama party." Ye Gods and little fishes, Help!

--That very few women who are satisfied with their personal charms are.

--That if you want a Negro to become your mortal enemy loan him some money or sign a note for him, then ask him to pay you back—Sweet dreams.

--That the stepping stones to success are often a rock road.

--That the Colored race pays a greater price for its patriotism than any other race living.

--That when a man gets old he has sympathy for every fellow who cannot deliver the goods.

PROMINENT NEGRO PASSES OUT

(By the Associated Negro Press.)

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 26.—Declaring he had "used the utmost care in appointing the committee to undertake this great work," Governor Lowden yesterday, through Dr. Francis W. Shepardson, director of the Illinois department of registration and education, announced the membership of his commission for the investigation of relationship between whites and Negroes in Chicago. Attorney Edgar A. Bancroft heads the commission which includes members of both races. Its personnel is as follows: Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears-Roebuck & Co.; Victor F. Lawson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News; Edward Osgood Brown, attorney and president of the Chicago branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Harry Eugene Kelly, attorney; William Scott Bond, real estate dealer; Dr. Cleveland Hall, an official of the Urban League; Edward H. Morris, attorney; Robert S. Abbott, editor of the Chicago Defender; Adelbert H. Roberts, sponsor in the fifty-first general assembly of a bill advocating the appointment of an inter-racial commission; George H. Jackson, business man; Dr. L. K. Williams, pastor of Olivet Baptist Church.

Commenting on the appointments, the governor's statement continued: "I have sought only the most representative men of both races. I have not even asked them whether they have views as to how the condition may be met."

"This is a tribunal constituted to get the facts and interpret them and find the way out."

"These riots were the work of the worst elements of both races and did not represent a majority of either."

"The two races are here and will remain here. The great majority of each realizes the necessity for living on terms of cordial good will and respect. That condition must be brought about. To say it cannot is to confess the failure of self-government."

"I do know it cannot be solved by mob violence."

"The committee probably will meet in the next ten days."
